

DISTILLERS PROTEST CHANGE PERMIT CONDITION

IN THREE MINUTES, CONSERVATIVE LEADER TELLS POLITICAL SECRETS AS ELECTION NEARS

London, Nov. 15.—"I'll give you exactly three minutes. Now shoot."

Sir George Younger, the millionaire brewer, the chairman of the Conservative party, most powerful political organization in England, the man who did more than anyone else to bring about the downfall of the Lloyd George Coalition government.

Every eye in Britain is glued on Younger as the general election in the wake of Lloyd George's resignation draws near. The election is set for November 15.

And here is what Britain's greatest political figure said in three minutes, answering my questions without hesitation and with machine-gun precision.

First Minute.

"No, I'm jolly well no nemesis I have no hostility toward any political parties or the leader of any parties. But I'm in intimate touch with members of Parliament and with our party machinery all over Britain—that is my business."

"And I know the voters were sick and tired of the Coalition government formed by fusing our party and the Liberals who followed Lloyd George."

"The people wanted a change. We couldn't afford to have our party split as the Liberal Party has been. It would have constituted a menace to the country and there had been one great united party to present a real alternative."

Second Minute.

"If things had gone on our party would have been split from the bottom. So we resolved it was better to do away with the coalition even though that might mean a split from the top—among the leaders."

"From my standpoint, it would be far better for our party to go to sure defeat in the election and be kept intact than to continue to slide along as at present."

"It is not true we wanted, are jobs for members of the Conservative party. Nor is it true, as Lloyd George said, that we were after profits, now that the country is done with war."

"What profits? High taxes, big debt, thousands of unemployed, tangled foreign affairs?"

Third Minute.

"We believed it was an imperative duty to the nation to keep the conservative party together as a solid bulwark against Socialism at home and the danger of war abroad."

"To Socialism we oppose our program of sane progress and reform."

"To the danger of war, which was very near in the Turkish crisis, we present our program of a determined effort to keep peace. Our people are sick to death of war."

"And speaking of foreign relations, I need hardly assure you that one of the pillars of our faith is closer and better and friendlier relations with America."

The three minutes were up. I rose to go. Characteristically, Sir George remarked to his secretary:

"Hereafter I am strong for newspaper men who keep their work and stick to three minutes."

GERMANY'S WIRTH ADMINISTRATION RESIGNS YESTERDAY

Suggestions For Successor Are Cabinet of Business Men Unaffiliated and Ministry Composed Only of Bourgeoisie.

PRESIDENT EBERT BUSY FORMING NEW CABINET

By Associated Press

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—President Ebert today is bending efforts toward the formation of a new cabinet to succeed the Wirth administration, the fall of which was announced last night. The Wirth administration resigned when the United Socialists refused to participate in the coalition ministry. A number of solutions for the crisis are suggested. One is for a cabinet of "business men without party affiliations," while another probability concerns itself with a ministry composed only of bourgeois. It is uncertain whether Wirth again will be commissioned to constitute the new ministry.

PINEVILLE ENDORSES PROPOSED ROUTING

Kiwanians There Raise $300 Today to Advertise Detroit-Cumberland Gap-Gulf Highway

PINEVILLE, Nov. 15.—The Pineville Kiwanis Club endorsed the proposition presented to them at their meeting last night by A. P. Lallier of Chicago, representative of the United States Automobile Association, to route a north to south highway through this way. Mr. Lallier's plan here was the same presented to Middlesboro, to call the route the Detroit-Cumberland Gap-Gulf highway and to solicit funds from the club for advertising the route.

Pineville is getting up the advertising funds asked of them, $300, today. Middlesboro reserved action until their Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday. The plan is to advertise this route thoroughly before any other highway in this section is proposed and so make this the outstanding route and the one recommended by the United States Automobile Association.

Nick Primavera was chairman of the meeting last night. The Shannon players orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

KIWANIS HAVE FIRST LUNCH HOTEL TOMORROW

The Kiwanis Club luncheon will be held in the Cumberland Hotel tomorrow for the first time and the price of the luncheon has been lowered to 55 cents. The time is still 12:30 o'clock and every Kiwanian member who is not sick or disabled is expected to be on hand for this memorable occasion.

Dr. J. W. Porter, pastor of the Third Avenue Baptist church of Louisville, former editor of the Western Recorder and a writer and speaker of note, will be the chief speaker at this occasion. Dr. Porter is in Middlesboro now as a delegate to the Baptist convention.

MASONS INSTALL GRAND CHAPLAIN, CONFER DEGREES

Pinnacle Lodge No. 661, F. and A. M., of Middlesboro, had the honor last night of a visit from E. E. Nelson of Williamsburg, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky and of installing him install the recently appointed Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, Rev. J. P. Scruggs of Franklin, Ky. at this meeting.

Both Mr. Nelson and Rev. Scruggs made addresses which were attentively listened to. At the same meeting the E. A. degree was conferred on Julian Plummer Scales and the F. O. degree on James A. Goforth.

PRAYER MEETING ON PINNACLE TOP TOMORROW MORNING

The delegates of the 86th annual Baptist conference will hold sunrise morning on the Pinnacle.

The Pinnacle stands 1,000 feet above the city and is at the present time being seriously considered as a proper site for a national park.

STANFORD TEAM HERE SATURDAY

Last Game Before Pineville One, Nov. 29—Coach Promises Better Fighting Spirit.

M. H. S. will play Stanford High at football Saturday, next to the last game of the season. The last game will be with Pineville, November 29, the day before Thanksgiving, the date being shifted a day so that every one who wants to may go to Knoxville Thanksgiving.

The Stanford team played Pineville a few weeks ago and showed some real form at forward passing. The Yellow Jackets, though, showed some class last Saturday in taking care of their opponents' pass work and they will be glad to see that kind of a game played against them.

M. H. S. should do better work on ends now, too, as two of her best men are coming back in the game. Earl Sloan, out part of Saturday, is now in good condition, and George Sewell, who has been out since the Junction City game, because of knee injury, is back in practice.

Coaches Porter and Wetherell are working hard to replace Ginsburg at tackle with one of the subs. Spores, 255-pound guard, will not doubt be given a regular place now as it was noticeable how this 12-year-old held his own Saturday.

The high school is insistent that the public be told the Yellow Jackets have awakened to a full sense of duty since the Richmond game and are now training in earnest. They realize they must beat Pineville and they are doing their best, but they want Middlesboro cooperation.

Coach Porter said this morning that more school spirit had been developed this week and he expects a big difference in the fighting spirit of the team Saturday. He made the boys a talk in chapel one morning this week pointing out the ones who, he knew, had not been keeping training and telling them in no uncertain terms what he expected of them from now on.

DENY CORBIN MEN DISBANDED UNION

Corbin L. and N. Strikers Seek Work in Shops, Though, Despite Official Protest.

By Associated Press

CORBIN, Nov. 14.—Union officials here denied today that the shopmen's union had been disbanded and that the strikers had been advised to seek employment.

A large number of the strikers have, however, put in applications for employment by the L. and N. Many have been refused, since the shops are well filled with new employees taken on after the strike.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 14.—Reports that the railroad shopmen's union at Corbin has disbanded and the men who went on strike July 1 released from further obligations to the union were partially verified here today by a statement from L. and N. officials that strikers in large numbers had been applying for jobs at Corbin during the last few days. However, union officials at Corbin denied the report.

During the early weeks of the strike the union at Corbin was regarded as especially strong with very few men returning to work when the railroad refused to settle with the union and began employing new men.

BAPTISTS ELECT NEW OFFICERS OF GENERAL ASS'N

W. W. Landrum Moderator, J. R. Sampson Vice-Moderator—Dr. L. L. Henson, Covington, Preaches Annual Sermon.

LAYMEN'S BANQUET AT CUMBERLAND HOTEL TONIGHT

Dr. W. W. Landrum of Russellville was elected moderator of the General Association of Kentucky Baptists for the ensuing year at the first meeting last night. Judge J. R. Sampson of Middlesboro and Dr. A. S. Pettie of Hickman were elected vice-moderators. J. G. Bow of Louisville, secretary and H. S. Summers of Louisville, assistant secretary. All of these men were duly installed.

The first part of the meeting last night was taken up with reports and organization. The program proper began with the address of welcome, given by Judge Sampson. He told the delegates that Middlesboro had wanted the convention so that the delegates might know this town and so the town might, from them, receive inspiration for larger accomplishments in missionary and evangelical work. He gave a short summary of this city's attractions and hospitality and closed by saying that the delegates were "welcome to everything here."

Dr. Pettie, the other vice-moderator, responded to this welcome, expressing the delegates' appreciation of this hospitality and the hope that they might be able to give the spiritual help hoped for.

Dr. L. L. Henson, pastor of the First Baptist church of Covington, gave the annual sermon. His text was "Ye shall be my witnesses," and his sermon, logically outlined, was both brilliant and inspiring. Dr. Henson emphasized the importance of giving oneself wholeheartedly in service to the Lord and of being God's witness.

"No preacher ought to undertake to preach the gospel unless he feels that he is sent from God, like John the Baptist," Dr. Henson said, "and the same feeling should pervade the Sunday school worker, the business man and the homemaker."

"We should be like the lamp that burneth and shineth," continued the speaker, "shining with all the training and education, in power and pulpit, that we can have, but we must also be burning with heart power."

Dr. Henson summed up the necessities for a good witness as being to know the truth, tell the truth and be the truth. First, the man with the best experience, the one who knows books, man, the world, most of all, God, most, makes the best witness. Then, he continued, we should tell what we know for it is of no benefit to have God in our hearts if we do not pass him on, so we should make the local church have a great evangelistic and missionary work. And last, we must be the truth, Dr. Henson said, and have a downright, stalwart, Christian character to back up our knowing and telling of the truth.

This morning Dr. C. M. Thompson of Louisville, corresponding secretary of the state board of missions, gave a full report of the year's work, showing that more had been done than any previous year, and announcing 485 baptisms this year.

Dr. T. B. Ray of Richmond, who is just back from Asia, spoke on conditions in the Far East, with which he is quite familiar. Dr. Austin Crutch of Atlanta spoke on church building.

The General Association this morning voted to send a special letter to Dr. J. M. Roddy from the convention here.

The Laymen's banquet will be held at the Cumberland tonight from 5 to 7 o'clock, and promises to be a big occasion. J. T. Henderson, Chattanooga, general chairman of Southern Baptist Laymen Workers is scheduled to speak, as are W. S. Farmer, state chairman, and T. R. Hill, of the local church.

Next year's program for the ministers conference preceding the Baptist convention was announced today. The program committee composed of R. L. Baker, Fred G. Tucker and Henry D. Allen. The program follows.

Monday, preceding the convention—

OUTLINES PURPOSE OF NEW FEDERAL COAL COMMISSION

Urges Employers And Employees To Bury Hatred and Consider Patriotic Duty Rather Than Selfish Gain.

NEW COMMISSION'S DUTY LIES ONLY IN FINDING FACTS

By Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 14.—The purpose of the new federal coal commission has outlined in an address here last night by former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall one of its members, as based upon a determination to lay bare the whole truth about the coal industry in such a way as to promote friendlier feelings between employers and employees who bitterly opposed each other this year in a five months strike.

Out of the investigation, Mr. Marshall said, there might well come a realization that every business has a patriotic side and that no laborer can regard his business as exclusively private. He suggested that organized self-control, rather than government procedure, was the objective to be sought in a democracy's relation with its people.

"The experiences of recent years, have been sufficient in number," said the former vice-president, who spoke before the Detroit Bankers' Association, "to justify the statement that this democracy of ours only can be called ideal if it be maintained by the organized self-control of the people. It is hardly a democracy if large bodies of people are compelled to do what its government demands at the point of force. Organized self control does not mean that if people do not voluntarily govern themselves, government will cease. Government of some kind will never cease to be among this people, and the existing government, if needful, will justify itself by force of arms."

Attitude of Commission.

"I assume that, in view of the relations I have to the coal fact finding commission, you have more than an idle curiosity to know the attitude of the commission."

"It has neither thoughts nor purpose of being awed by influence or bought by gain. Its members have no political fortunes to serve, and their private welfare can be affected but slightly by whatever may happen. It entertains no malice, envy or ill will against a soul on earth. Its purpose in the finding of facts, to begin the investigation under the belief that all the contending forces have a sincere desire to assist in ascertaining the truth about every element entering into and every condition surrounding the business. It does not purpose to be suspicious nor censorious but it does intend to see that it shall not be treated as though it were a court of law before which parties litigant are appearing, each striving to conceal some fact of advantage to the other side and each seeking to cast discredit upon the other. It has been provided, and so far believes, that it will receive the honest assistance of both operator and miner in the effort to ascertain the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, heaving in the line, let the chips fall where they may."

To Promote Better Feeling.

"Out of assistance of this kind, if it shall be given, as the weeks go by and the facts develop, it hopes to promote a friendlier feeling than has heretofore existed between the operator and miner. This great economic question, but is more than that—it is a great patriotic question. Of course the inquiry will be valueless unless out of it the real facts can be found and justice may be done, preferably if it can; forcibly if it must. But what an impulse to the lifting higher of the standard of the republic it will be if out of it, each of these contending forces shall ultimately discover that there a patriotic side to every business conducted in America, and that they rise to the highest types of American citizens who so adjust their business grievances in accordance with the principle of organized self control as to render unnecessary any govern-

SAY RULING MAKES THEIR ACTIVITIES NEARLY IMPOSSIBLE

Complaint Mostly Regarding Required Bonds of $100,000 for Each Manufacturer—Clerical Error Could Forfeit Fourth.

TREASURY INTIMATES DECISION MAY BE MATERIALLY MODIFIED

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—American distillers today filed formal protest with Internal Revenue Commissioner Fair against enforcing the recent Treasury decision requiring drastic changes in the form and condition of permits under which they operate. The decision, distillers say, makes it practically impossible to continue those activities found to be entirely legal under the most stringent interpretation of the prohibition law.

Much of the distillers' complaints seems to revolve around the drastic provisions governing the furnishing of bonds of $100,000 for each manufacturer whose plant produces alcohol, one-fourth of which distillers say may be forfeited on a casual clerical error. The impression at the Treasury today is that there is some ground for the complaints and that decision in the question may be materially modified.

"There is a public side to this question. In all our calmer moments, when not actuated by greed or hatred, no laborer of the republic dare to consider his business as exclusively private in its relation to the welfare of the nation. Democracy spells not alone private ownership—it spells also proper welfare and the action of the public in all of its business transactions will have much to do with the ability of the commission to promote a more friendly feeling between the operator and the miner. One of the weaknesses of the large publicity given to American affairs is the proneness of business men of America to form conclusions either from a newspaper rumor or from an isolated fact. The commission hopes and believes that the sober second judgment of the American people is yet sound and that it will always be cast in favor of equity and fair dealing. It hopes, therefore that judgment may be suspended on isolated facts and rumors and that the ultimate opinion of the people may be made up from all facts that may be ascertained, but in the meanwhile it hopes that the coal industry may not be singled out, although it is the most important one in the land as the only one that the people believe should come to aidable relations through the doctrine of organized self control. It will help much if all other business in life that is not being investigated will investigate itself and begin to apply the principles of democracy to the conduct of trade and business. Perhaps if we preach the golden rule long enough, here and there a man may be found who will catch the vision of it as the perfect democracy and will begin to live it."

"The coal commission will earnestly strive to evolve not alone a temporary but a permanent peace founded upon justice and equality. It will be patient and long-suffering; it will not be suspicious, but upon the other hand it has enough skilled men in its membership and in its personnel to know the truth and it will not hesitate to put in the pillory any man who purposefully attempts to deceive it. It is friendly and good will justice and truth, for its guiding principles, but it will no more hesitate to condemn falsehood than it will be glad to recognize the truth, and if the American people will aid its labor along this line, they will be of vast assistance in reaching a possible solution of the question; more than that, they will unconsciously find that there are many things in their own business that need readjustment along the ideals of the republic."

THE BAPTIST CONVENTION

This week there are assembled in our city delegates from practically every city and town in the state to the eighty-sixth annual convention of the General Association of Kentucky Baptists. These delegates are representative of the 300,000 Southern Baptists in the state and Middleboro is proud to have as its guests such an assemblage.

We are well-acquainted with the wholehearted zeal and vigor which characterizes our local Baptists and we admire the organization and management which dominates their church activities and accomplishments. So it is that we are pleased to entertain the state Baptists, an augmentation of Middleboro Baptists.

Then Middleboro, as the fastest growing city in the state, is anxious that the rest of the state become better acquainted here. Away off down here in the corner, surrounded by mountains and wild country we may have been at times overlooked by persons who have not visited here. We feel that as soon as we become better known, there will be no danger of being overlooked.

The Baptist convention is the first of several big conventions planned for this city in the near future in an endeavor to bring Middleboro more to the knowledge of her neighbors. So we are especially anxious that this be a great success, paving the way for other successful conventions.

The people of the city are at the service of the Baptists who are guests here and are cooperating to insure the success of the convention. Everything is to be done to make every delegate resolve to visit Middleboro again and to tell the folks back home about our city.

MR. METAL MIKE

An uncanny new invention, known as Metal Mike, is perfected by Elmer A. Sperry, the marine inventor.

Metal Mike is an automatic ship steering device. It looks a lot like a street car motorman's control box. Hook it to a ship's wheel and it steers six times more accurately than the best human wheelman.

The Moffett, largest tanker of the Standard Oil fleet, recently made a 4000 mile trip in which it was steered almost continuously by Metal Mike.

If the ocean waves twist the ship off her course, Metal Mike instantly detects the deviation from the route mapped out inside him before leaving port. Automatically Mike whirls the steering wheel and corrects the ship's course.

When you have a device like Metal Mike, by which a ship can practically steer itself from San Francisco to Hongkong, you have about the nearest thing to human machinery ever made.

It is enough to have made a skilled navigator like Christopher Columbus drop dead from fright.

It makes you wonder, is there any work we do that eventually will not be duplicated by machinery?

Metal Mike of course, lacks judgment, the most important quality of a human pilot. That is, Mike can steer a ship to destination—unless another ship gets in the way.

Still, it would not be impossible to improve Mike's cog wheel brain so that, nearing another ship, he automatically would steer away from it. This would be just the reverse of the selenium torpedo, which automatically pursues its prey, no matter how many twists and turns are taken in an attempt to escape.

We recall an automatic man that years ago toured the country in cheap vaudeville houses. It walked, it bowed. It did many stunts its operator opened its coat displaying a maze of machinery visible inside than a glass.

It went well until a woman, crafty in her knowledge of masculinity, put a quip into the automatic man's leg. This career ended with a howl.

But at that, we wouldn't be surprised to wake up one of these marvelous days and find a genuine automatic man strutting the streets—and possibly running for political office.

ARE SCIENCE AND RELIGION RELATED?

Religion and science have many controversies. One often disagrees with the other. There are stages in the progress of science when science seems to be at variance with religion, yet, as a rule, when science makes sufficient advance it generally confirms religious belief.

Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, the New York electrical expert, offers this argument:

"All that we can say is that the two, science and religion, are not necessarily incompatible, but are different and unrelated activities of the human mind." Had he contented himself with saying that the two are not necessarily incompatible, his position would be approved without comment.

He goes further and contends that God and immortality are illogical conceptions and science is based on sense perceptions by the laws of logic, and we have no proof of the correctness of either the perceptions or the logic.

God and immortality are thoroughly logical conceptions. Both as logical as life and mortality. The trouble between science and religion is that science has no faith.

THE OPEN FORUM

Editor Daily News: It seems to me that even the most ardent M. H. S. football supporters are beginning to lose faith in our team. Our boys are big enough and fast enough but they just naturally haven't spunk enough to be winners. I think, by that I do not mean that any individual player lacks courage, but they all lack a certain determination and seriousness in regard to the game, or at least enough of them do to keep us on the losing end.

I know several boys on the first team that, when their coach's back is turned, invariably sneak a cigarette. Such a boy should be kicked off the team so fast he couldn't have time to explain and other members of the team who have its welfare at heart should watch out for such things. Then the players do not bother to keep regular hours, and the Saturday night dance for them is a regular affair.

There is no excuse for a football team if every member of it does not train rigorously. A smoker, a heavy eater of fats and sweets, a fellow who keeps late hours, and one who deliberately violates other training rules has no place in a game based on principles of honor and courage. Besides this, he is making himself liable to injury and creates a general weakness on the team.

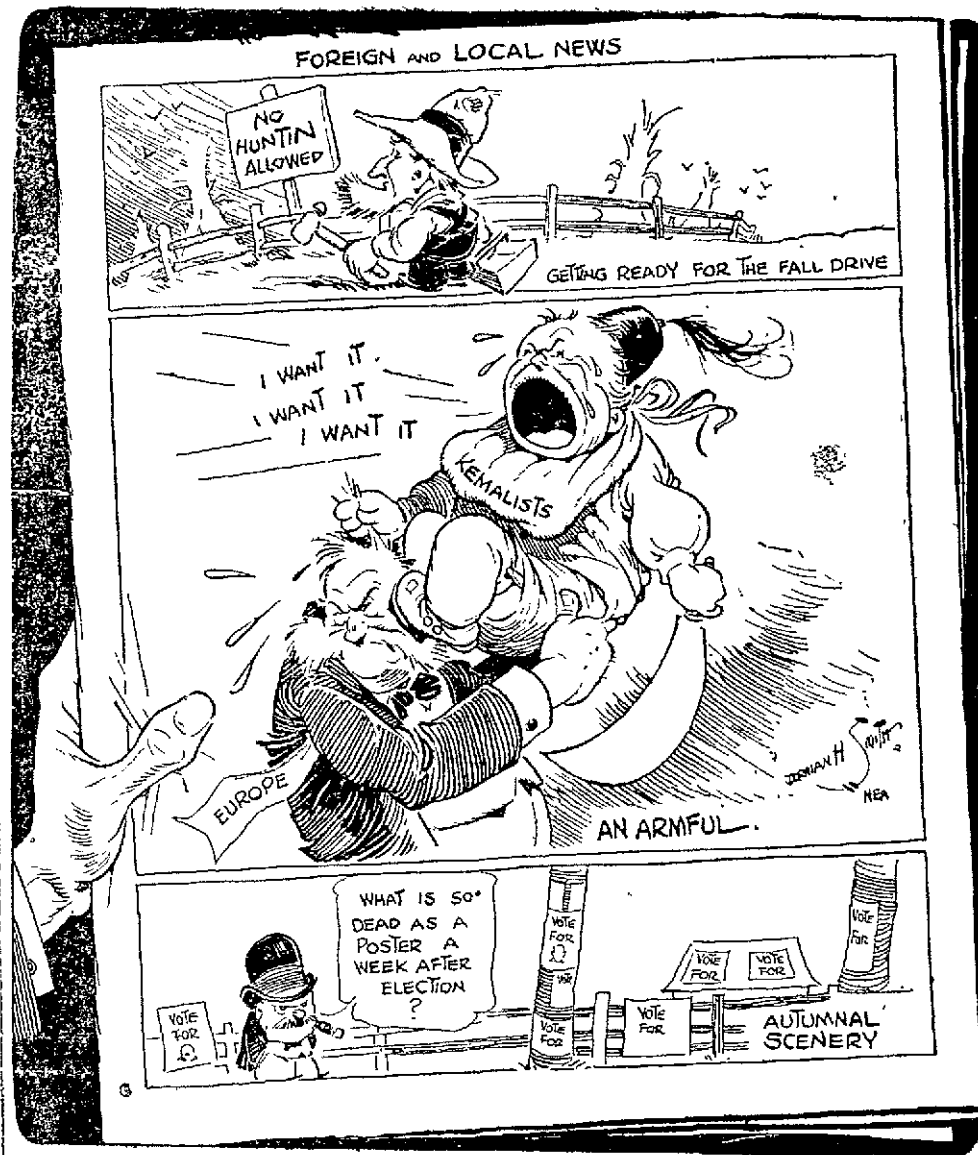

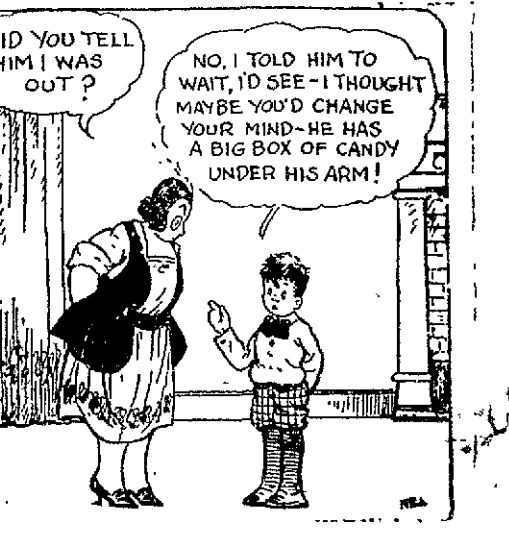

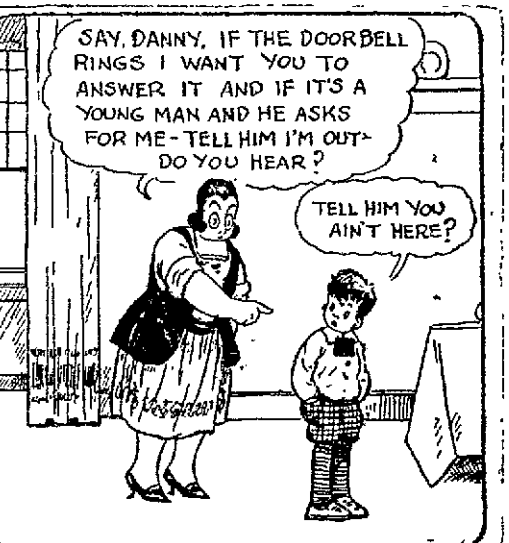

Mr. Wetherell as line coach and Porter as backfield coach are a competent pair and if the members of the team really made up their minds to win the rest of this season's games there is no reason why they should not. Bemoaning the fact that we are playing in hard luck gets us nowhere but individual introspection might.

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

INVITATION

By Berton Braley

Up in the forest now the leaves are falling,
Matting the earth with red and brown and gold,
The birds, ere long, will hear the southland calling;
The autumn days are bright, the nights are cold,
And as I struggle at my daily labor
Soft in my ears comes whispering a breeze,
Which says, "Come out, the forest calls you, neighbor!
There are no lovelier days and nights than these.

"The brisk air sets your pulses beating quicker,
Life is a-tingle in these gorgeous days,
Each breath you take is like a draft of liquor;
The woods with many colors are ablaze:
Gone is the summer languor, but the water,
Clear, cold and limpid, laps the pebbly shores,
Nature is fairer than you ever thought her,
Now is the time to seek the Out-of-Doors.

"Come, slip away, Put on your old attire,
Tempt some good pal to come along as well,
Think of the nights beside a crackling fire,
Think of the frosty mornings and the smelt
Of bacon in the pan, the fragrant savor
Of boiling coffee in the morning glow.
These are the days! You hesitate, you waver—
Back to the woods, old scout, come on—let's go!"

TACTFUL DANNY

By Allman

Deep Water

BY ZOE BECKLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

In a burst of fury, JOHN BARRETT, wealthy husband and father, declares he is about to leave for good his wife ANITA and their high school student children.

JOHN Junior and ALICE. As Barrett makes this announcement, his wife refers sarcastically to his unspeakable friend MYRA DEAN.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

The name of Myra Dean on his wife's lips with unspeakable before it, shook Barrett to the depths.

"Unspeakable!" he echoed, stammering with fury. "You don't mean to—drag her in—not this way—it's—why, how dare you?"

She smiled at him, her lips tortured with detestation. "I'm sorry to—hurt you so badly. Why should you mind? It is only your wife who says it. But I suppose it does hurt a man to have the bitter truth told him about a woman who is dearer than—than his own children."

He came so near her that she drew away in distaste. "Anita," his tone was terrifyingly low, "if a man had dared to say that of Myra, I would cram the words back into his throat with my two hands."

"I have no doubt of your passion, whatever else I may doubt."

"But don't you think that because you are a woman I am going to let you drag Myra Dean's name in the mud."

She is the truest sport in the world. You have not the slightest conception of how square she is."

"Naturally!" There was half a jolt in Anita's voice. "How do you expect me to understand so paragon a creature! Me—a mere wife—to realize how square and splendid is the woman you idealize—"

"I tell you she's a friend. Can you understand what that means? A good friend, staunch and true. And she is fair to you."

"Really!" "Yes, in a way you cannot understand. She has nothing to hide. She can look the world square in the face and does it. But because she knows that you don't know it, she has told me I must not see her any more. She! The woman you call unspeakable."

His wife, terrified that she would defeat herself by tears, hurried to the door. But fury saved her. She wheeled:

"Then go to her." Anita held her self control by sternest effort.

"Go to her. Out of my sight. I can stand no more. Go tell her to take you and keep you. Look the world in the face together. Anyhow—anywhere—so long as I and my children cannot see her face—or yours."

Barrett was at the door before she could reach it. "That shall be as you wish — my going. It is done. But if I go to her—and I may—it will be only because I beg the honor. We are clear, on that, I hope."

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

They asked some chickadees if they had seen Snow Man.

OFF TO HUNT SNOW MAN

Jack o'Lantern did not have Mother Goose's broom—or broomstick, I should say—after all.

He was greatly relieved to find that his stick of a body had not been stolen from the fairy lady who swept the sky.

"It's bad enough to have to spend the rest of one's days leaning up against a barn," said Jack, "but it would be worse to go to jail."

Scarcely had the words left his mouth when the farmer's wife came out and lifted off Jack's head and set it on the ground. Then she walked back to the house with the broomstick in her hand.

"This is a fine stick for beating carpets," she said. "Much too useful to be wasted on a silly pumpkin."

By this time Nancy and Nick were for down the road in their magic Green Shoes. And you'll never guess where they were going.

They were hunting for Snow Man, and Snow Man was a long way off up on a mountain.

They asked some chickadees if they had seen Snow Man, and the chickadees had. They told the twins where to find him.

"He's standing in front of the wood-chopper's house and he's got on red mitten and a muffler and a butter bowl for a hat and stones for eyes and he has an old pipe in his mouth," said the chickadees. "And he's got a broomstick over his shoulder for a gun."

"That's the very person we are looking for," said Nick, positively to Nancy. "Perhaps his gun is Mother Goose's broomstick."

Goose thanked the little gray birds and hurried on.

The Dying Year.

Summer led me through the woods,
Where birds and flowers play;
And down, far down, a leafy path,
Was autumn on her way.

And as she came she waved her wand
Among the trees and bowers;
The wood took on a brighter hue,
Like sunshine after showers.

The leaves she painted red and brown,
The fields all yellow gold;
Asters raised their purple heads;
In gorgeous wealth unfold.

The sunlight was a mellow sheen,
A clear, clear blue the sky;
The air was filled with music sounds,
She smiled and passed us by.

We looked, and all around us
Her autumn beauty lay;
Summer kissed her hand to me,
And quietly sped away.

If You Are Well Bread

You acknowledge all wedding gifts with a note of thanks, written by you personally. Telephoning your thanks or extending them verbally, will not suffice.

The notes may be short and informal, but they should be written with as little delay as possible. To acknowledge a present sent by a married couple a bride writes to the wife and thanks both. Of course, she includes her husband's thanks with her own.

Mrs. Colson Gives Luncheon Series

A series of three of the most delightfully arranged informal luncheons of the season have been given this week at the New Cumberland Hotel by Mrs. Dave Colson of Louisville who is the house guest of Mrs. O. B. Hollingsworth.

Today noon the dinner was given complimentary to Mrs. Chas. E. Herd, Miss Lenore Herd and Miss Elsie Herd. Lovely little favors of Coty's L'Origan perfume tied with bows of tulle were at each place.

Yesterday, the second of the series, was complimentary to Mrs. Earl Camp, Mrs. O. B. Hollingsworth, Jr., Mrs. Wilbur Hollingsworth, Mrs. Earl Hollingsworth and Mrs. O. B. Hollingsworth, Sr. A six course luncheon was served. A lovely bouquet of cut flowers formed the centerpiece of the table. Favors were twin bouquets tied with lavender and pink tulle.

Monday the guests were: Mrs. W. J. Callison, Mrs. Joe Alderson and Mrs. O. B. Hollingsworth, Sr.

C. W. B. M. Meets with Mrs. Oaks

The C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church met with Mrs. W. U. Oaks yesterday at her home on Exeter avenue. Fourteen members were present. The Rev. A. B. Reeves talked on the necessity of home missions. Mrs. Chas. Cooke was leader for the day. Refreshments were served.

Series of Luncheons for Mrs. Colson

TODAY'S RECIPES

CHEESE TIMBALES

By Brtha E. Shapleigh, of Columbia University

1 cup milk
1-2 cup bread crumbs, soft bread crumbs
1 cup grated cheese
2 eggs
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-4 teaspoon paprika
Cook milk and bread crumbs until a paste is formed; then add cheese, seasonings and eggs, slightly beaten. Turn into buttered timbale molds or cups, and set these in a pan of hot water. Bake until firm, or when a pointed knife is inserted in the center none of the custard cling to the knife. Turn onto a serving dish and pour around the timbales a

PEPILLENTO SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 pinchos finely chopped or rubbed through a sieve
1-8 teaspoon pepper
12 teaspoon salt
Make as any cream sauce is made.

HEIRESS TO WED SCHOOL CHUM

Reported proposals from European nobility did not turn the head of Delora Angell, heiress to the $35,000,000 fortune of the late John W. Gates. Instead, the 19-year-old Chicago girl went back to her grammar school sweetheart and now is engaged to marry him. He is Lester Norris, 21, free lance artist and son of Cal Norris, St. Charles, Ill., undertaker.

OPERATION NOT SUCCESSFUL

"16 years ago I was operated for appendicitis and later operated again for gall stones. Neither did me any good and I suffered all kinds of torture since. Five years ago I took Mayo's Wonderful Remedy and have felt no symptoms or pain since. All stomach sufferers should take it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes (practically) all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Sold by Lee's Drug Store and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

STADIUMS CHANGE FOOTBALL STYLE

Inability to Hear Signals Causes the Teams To Confer on Every Play

BY BILLY EVANS

In every sport plenty of action, and speed is the fundamental feature if the game is to continue to meet with popular favor.

Since the introduction of the forward pass, which features the open-style game, football has rapidly advanced in public favor because the game has been speeded up.

The open game has supplied the element of uncertainty, it has enabled the spectator to more closely follow the ball, which, of course, will mean follow the play. But best of all it has speeded up the action.

The increased popularity of football during the past 10 years has caused any number of the leading colleges to build new stadiums that will house the crowds anxious to see the big teams in action.

These new stadiums have been a great thing for the spectators, but in one respect they have slowed up the game, I am wondering if there is any solution for it.

The acoustics of the football stadium are such that when a crowd begins cheering it is absolutely impossible to hear signals called. The shout of the quarter back ending the next play fades into nothing before the yell of the rival students and alumni. That before each play the team having possession of the ball go into a close conference. At such a conference either through the use of the regular signals or in some other way the quarter unfolds to his teammates the next play.

It is possible that it doesn't take much more time to give the signals in this manner than by the ordinary line-up in which the signals are called after the players assume their respective positions. It seems twice as long.

However, it is the looks of the thing that hurts. It takes you back to the days when rival teams would be selected from a bunch of boys, and of course, having no set of signals, it would be necessary to hold a conference before each play and decide who should carry the ball and how the play would be attempted.

The idea of well coached college football teams having a conference before each play certainly looks very amateurish.

To me there always was a certain thrill to see the teams line up, and then listen to the quarterback shout a jumble of numbers that meant little or nothing to the spectators, but carried a message to every member on the team in possession of the ball.

The acoustics of most of the new stadiums have eliminated that feature of play, which I am sure is far more pleasing to the eye than the next play conference as now held.

Another question arises with this new stadium condition which makes it impossible for those on the playing field to hear because of the shouts of their supporters. Just how much time shall a team be permitted to take in holding such a conference?

If a team in a certain period had a brisk wind blowing against them there might be a desire to delay things as much as possible to kill time. Late in the game the same tactics might be adopted with profit. Several times Saturday I noted the officials warning the two teams about using up too much time in the before-play conference.

However, it seems to me the new stadiums, with all the advantages offered, have added one undesirable feature—these conferences. It wouldn't surprise me if this feature came in for some consideration by the rule makers.

THE FROCK FOR YOUTH

Incorrect — Correct

Here is an interesting story in contrast.

In the charming, quaintly old fashioned frock of white gros de Londres with its net edged ruffles and tiny empire collar we see a typically youthful evening frock, particularly suited to the slender. It makes her distinctive and emphasizes her youth. Put the same girl in a black velvet evening gown with a white net cape of spangles, heavily draped at the sides and she loses her attractiveness and becomes rather awkward and also badly dressed. Yet the frock in itself is lovely—just the thing for someone else.

DAVIS, THE HOBO KING, EXPLAINS SECRET CODE

JEFF DAVIS, "HOBO KING," AND HOBO SIGNS.

Cincinnati, Nov. 15.—Why is it that a family not averse to giving food to a man asking it is visited frequently by such men, while the house next door, where there is antipathy to hoboes, is never visited?

To such men as seek handouts, the reason is written in blazing letters. But the average person, however, will not see the signs—which may be set down on his own gatepost.

The sign language of the hoboes is the means by which those who have provided or suffered in a community leave advice for those of the wandering brotherhood who follow. Water tanks, railway bridges, fences and the like bear the tidings—and wise is the wanderer who heeds them.

Jeff Davis, King of Hoboes, and international president of the Hobos of America, compiled the set of signs surrounding his picture.

Reading from top to bottom, the left column signs mean:

1. Hostile town — bulls police eyes open
2. Slow burg—bulls asleep.
3. Dry town—clipper inverted.
4. Many blind pigs dicker up
5. One-cop town; stroke below is only night watchman here.
6. Many handouts—sign near station.
7. Good for handout—sign on gate or door
8. Beware of Montana—a warning of the 11 months 29 day sentence imposed there.
9. Dog sign—four legs and tail.
10. Bum june—tells cops, hails hoboes.
11. Woodpile—meal if you chop.
12. Give money here—circles de note coins.
13. Railroad duct these folk; give money for fare

Top to bottom, the signs in the right hand column mean:

1. Many ties—warning on being ditched on long stretch between the stations.
2. Jail—go there for bed.
3. Thirty days if plucked.

4. Cheap town — cheap wages, poor conditions, and a on
5. Strike—good town to work in
6. I got a stake
7. Good bulls—great hoboes right
8. Float boat—indicating judge gives hoes floaters.
9. Ten days here.
10. Six months here
11. Hostile cops — police brackets or jewelry.
12. Good restaurant — good food on dish wash-bong
13. Mission — good for feed and pop
14. Angel at mission — two sympathetic welfare worker
15. Mother with a boy hobo — always good for food and clothes, seeks thumps of son.

HUNTING SEASON IN KENTUCKY OPENS

By Associated Press

Frankfort, Nov. 15.—Hunters throughout the state tonight began brushing up their automobiles, single and double barreled shotguns and other weapons preparatory to the opening of the hunting season tomorrow. As a warning to those who are planning to get an early start tomorrow and to the others who will follow suit throughout the entire hunting season for rabbits and quail, R. Tuttle, Executive Agent of the Game and Fish Commission, has issued a list of DON'TS, which he avers will keep the hunter out of trouble.

The season opening tomorrow also removes the ban on the killing of woodcock and the trapping of fur bearing animals. The open season on rabbits, quail and woodcock extends to January 1.

The Masquerader

Chilcote changed his position.
"You are interested in the middle down at Westminster?" he asked sarcastically.

"I—?" It was the turn of the stranger to draw back a step. "Oh, I read my newspaper with the other five million, that is all. I am an outsider." His voice sounded curt, the warmth that adoration had brought into it a moment before had frozen abruptly.

An outsider! What an enviable word! Chilcote repeated.

"Possibly to those who are well inside the ring. But let us go back to Lexington. What a pinnacle the man reached, and what a drop he had! It has always seemed to me an extraordinary instance of the human leaven running through us all. What was the real cause of his collapse?" he asked suddenly. "Was it drugs or drink? I have often wished to get at the truth."

Again Chilcote changed his attitude. "Is truth ever worth getting at?" he asked, irrelevantly.

In the case of a public man—yes. He exchanges his privacy for the interest of the masses. If he gives the masses the details of his success, why not the details of his failures? But was it drink that sucked him under?"

No! Chilcote's response came after a pause. "Drugs."

Again Chilcote hesitated. And at the moment of his indecision a woman brushed past him, laughing boisterously. The sound jarred him.

"Was it drugs?" the stranger went on easily. "I have always had a theory that it was."

Yes. It was morphine. The answer came before Chilcote had realized it. The woman's laugh at the stranger's quiet persistence had convinced him. He drew it from him. Instantly he had spoken he looked at him quickly, like one who has for a moment forgotten a necessary vigilance.

There was silence while the stranger thought for a moment over the information just given him. Then he spoke again, with a new touch of vehemence.

"So I imagined," he said. "Though, on my soul, I never really credited it. To have gained so much and to have thrown it away for a common vice!" He made an exclamation of disgust.

Chilcote gave an unsteady laugh. "You judge hardly!" he said. The other repeated his sound of contempt. "Justly so. No man has the right to squander what another would give his soul for. It lessens the general respect for power."

"You are a believer in power?" The tone was sarcastic, but the sarcasm sounded thin.

"Yes. All power is the outcome of individuality either past or present. I find no sentiment for the man who plays with it."

The quiet contempt of the tone stung Chilcote.

Do you imagine that Lexington made no fight?" he asked impulsively. "Can't you picture the man's struggle while the race that had been slave gradually became master?" He stopped to take breath, and in the cold pause that followed it seemed to him that the other made a murmur of incredulity.

Perhaps you think of morphine as a pleasure?" he added. "Think of it instead as a reward—what tortures the mind if held to and the body if cast off." Urged by the darkness and the silence of his companion, the rest of his speech had loosened. In that moment he was not Chilcote the man, but from East Wark whose moods and silences were proverbial, but he was Chilcote the man, whose mind craved the relief of speech.

You talk as the world talks—out of ignorance and self-righteousness. He went on. "Before you condemn Lexington you should put yourself in his place."

As you do?" the other laughed. Unsuspecting and inoffensive as the laugh was it startled Chilcote. With a sudden alarm he pulled himself up. (To Be Continued)

"WORSE THAN PAIN"

Louisiana Lady Says She Has "Never Found Anything Better Than Cardui for a Run-Down Condition."

Morgan City, La.—"It would be hard for me to tell how much benefit I have derived from the use of Cardui," said Mrs. I. G. Bowman, of 1319 Front Street, this city.

"I was so run-down in health I could hardly go. I was thin. I had no appetite. Could not rest or sleep well. I was so weak, and so very nervous, I was no pleasure to myself."

"I suffered some pain, but the worst of my trouble was from being so weak and easy to get tired and out of heart."

"This nervous condition was worse than pain."

"Some one told me of Cardui, and I decided to use it."

"After using a few bottles, I regained my strength. I wasn't so nervous, and began to eat and sleep, and grew stronger and was soon well."

"I have never found anything better for a run-down condition."

If you suffer as this Louisiana lady did, you, too, should find Cardui helpful for your troubles.

Choose For Yourself Or Accept Our Suggestions As To What To Eat—

Many L. & N. patrons, particularly those who travel a great deal and "get tired of looking at a menu card," have accepted as an attractive innovation the compartment platters on L. & N. diners.

These little table d'hote offerings are always carefully selected so as to round out a satisfying lunch or a substantial dinner, particular effort being made by L. & N. stewards to serve a "balanced meal" at an economical price.

No matter whether you choose your meal from the daily specials on L. & N. Menu Cards, or accept our suggestions as to what to eat, you'll find the variety and quality of food—the fairness of price—the excellent cooking and seasoning—and the attentive service—all worthy of comment and all offering additional reasons for the popularity of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

M. H. S. BOOSTER APPEARS TODAY

Monthly Periodical This Year—Change in Class Schedule—Freshman Assembly Program.

The first issue of the M. H. S. Booster will be out today. The Booster for this year is a 16-page paper and is being issued monthly. Elizabeth Huist is editor-in-chief. A year's subscription is 75 cents; one issue is 15 cents.

This announcement was made in high school chapel this morning along with several other important matters. Among these was a notice of a change in the high school schedule. School has been opening at 8:15 with the first half hour for study hall or chapel and then getting out at 3:15 p. m. For the rest of the time, though, classes will begin at 8:15, with chapel only once a week, and school will let out at 2:30 p. m.

Talks on the athletic association were made by Leo Wardrup, its president, Coach Porter and Superintendent Bradner. They urged the promotion of this association to hold the classes together and make for school spirit, not class spirit.

The assembly program was in the hands of the Freshman Class, and was a patriotic one. This is the last of a series of programs which have been given each Wednesday morning for a month by the four classes of the high school. The program this morning follows:

Opening song, "America, the Beautiful," devotionals, Inez Townes; violin solo, Ruth Lee, piano duet, Pearl Buxton and Audie P. P. vocal duet, Lola Smith and Clara Tucker; cornet solo, Regier Cecil; patriotic medley, et al.

THAT DULL ACHING.

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys (lame and aching backs, your neighbor's recommendation Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Read this statement.

Alvin Howard, carpenter, 1226 Cumberland Ave., Middlesboro, says: "I have found Doan's Kidney Pills to be just as represented in every respect and I am glad to recommend them to anyone having kidney trouble. Doan's Pills have practically cured me of weak and irregular kidneys that have bothered me for a long time. The greatest trouble was a too frequent desire to pass the kidney secretions and a dull aching across the top of my back. Doan's Kidney Pills have soon straightened my back and kidneys and I have had no trouble since."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Howard had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mpls., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement
